When it comes to Gordon, Edelstein, Krepack, Grant, Felton & Goldstein, the old adage that the whole is greater than the sum of its parts definitely applies – especially because the firm specializes in two areas that often overlap: personal injury and workers’ compensation law. “There just aren’t many firms that concentrate in both areas,” says partner and personal injury attorney Roger Gordon. It’s part of what gives the firm its edge, sure. But what it means for clients is even more important.

“They get the power of the entire firm behind every case,” says partner and workers’ compensation attorney Sherry Grant. “We work very closely.” And with six partners – Ms. Grant, Mr. Gordon, Howard Krepack, Richard Felton, Irwin Goldstein and Mark Edelstein – out of eight named as “Best Lawyers®”, the proof of the firm’s success is in the proverbial pudding. Indeed, for those who have been injured –whether on or off the job, by defective products, motor-vehicle accidents or employment discrimination – they provide the right kind of legal guidance. “We combine the resources, experience and track record needed to obtain justice for the injured,” says personal injury attorney and co-managing partner, Howard Krepack.

It also doesn’t hurt that the attorneys are like family to each other. “We’ve worked together for 30 years,” says partner Richard Felton, who practices workers’ compensation law. “It gives us an incredible depth of experience, but it also makes the practice of law that much more enjoyable.”
